

God did not leave us alone, as orphans?

After the Consecration, Christ himself - body, blood, soul, and divinity – is present under the appearances of bread and wine, offering himself to the Father for our redemption. The full work of our redemption is truly and effectively carried out in the Mass. Before this amazing mystery, it is necessary for us to be humble, to acknowledge our inability to understand fully the unfathomable reality that the Eucharist contains. We firmly believe that reality because of the word of God. Our whole faith is brought into play when we believe Jesus is really, truly, substantially present in the Eucharist. Let us offer thanks to God, who did not leave us orphans, but remains with us always, through the Eucharist! Want to know more? Our Adult Ed offerings cover this and much more!
